BOARD INVOLVEMENT BEFORE THE STRATEGIC PLANNING PROCESS BEGINS
One of the board’s main responsibilities is to help set strategic direction for their organization. As such it must from the outset work towards creating a longer-range vision, setting priorities, and setting the stage for the development of strategic plan. This session will examine the board involvement before the strategic planning process begins.

- Providing advice in establishing long-term goals
- Defining vision, mission and values of organization
- Providing input on the critical strategic issues and the proposed strategic direction
- Engaging in what will be accomplished not how to achieve the results

CEO-BOARD RELATIONSHIP IN STRATEGY PROCESS
While there is no perfect delineation or separation of board and management roles in strategy development, the board and CEO each have traditional strategic decision-making roles. Ideally, the board and management collaboratively pursue strategic alignment. This session will look at the CEO-board relationship in strategy process.

- Evaluation of strategic decisions by the board of directors
- Overview of the role of the board
- CEOs strategic planning responsibilities
- Need for an open, trust-based board culture that embraces diverse views

ENSURING TRANSPARENCY & ADEQUACY OF STRATEGY COMMUNICATION

To improve the board’s effectiveness in strategic planning, members require frequent, high-quality interaction as well as transparent and candid communication from management. This session will explore management ability to assist the board in its strategic planning process through transparent communications and providing it with relevant and material information.

- Ensuring that the board is receiving adequate information
- Assessing directors
- How to compile and disseminate necessary information to the board
- Finding the right level for board communications: neither too tactical nor too high-level
- Improving the quality of board communications

ALIGNING STRATEGY WITH RISK MANAGEMENT

Aligning both risk management and strategic planning results in the ability to focus on events and strategies that really matter. The risks and opportunities associated with strategic objectives should be clearly identified, discussed, understood and monitored by the board. This discussion highlights best practices for aligning strategy with risk management.

- Linking risk management to the strategic planning process
- Using strategic planning and monitoring processes for effective decision making with respect to risk management
- Matching risks with strategic planning objectives and outcomes
- Identifying potential risks proactively

CREATING A STRATEGY-FOCUSED BOARD

The effectiveness with which boards engage in strategic planning depends heavily on the board's composition. Boards perform best when they consist of a mix of industry and value creation experts and leadership who possess the right combination of skills in order to have effective value creation and monitoring over corporate strategy. This session will look at best practices for building strategic capability into board composition and leadership.

- Red flags and best practices of strategic boards
- Role of the Board Chair
- Avoiding entrenchment devices and self interest
- Developing management accountability to the board, and the board to shareholders
- Takeaways for building a high performing board and renewal

AVOIDING STRATEGIC PLANNING FAILURE

While engaging in comprehensive strategic planning is almost a necessity for ongoing success, it in itself is not a guarantee for achieving future goals. This session will explore the main challenges of strategic planning from a board's perspective with tips for creating an integrated and innovative approach to strategy and strategic planning.

- Managing the complexities of strategic planning in a rapidly evolving business world
- Main pitfalls of strategic planning from a board's perspective
- Best practices for strategic effectiveness
- Obstacles in achieving an integrated to strategic planning and execution

WHAT BOARDS NEED TO KNOW: PROVIDING BOARD WITH SUFFICIENT INFORMATION TO EVALUATE THE STRATEGY

It is imperative for directors to have sufficient information to assist in the establishment and evaluation of a strategic plan. Successful boards have high expectations when it comes to getting the right information so they can contribute their input in the strategy planning process. This session will examine the type of information required by boards for successful strategic planning.

- Ensuring board receives adequate information to effectively input strategy decisions
- Key information on the assumptions underlying the strategy
- Informing the board of alternative strategies that may have been considered
- Arranging for director immersion in business operations through briefings and site visits

MAKING STRATEGY A CRITICAL PRIORITY FOR BOARDS

While the concept of making strategic planning a critical board priority might seem obvious, boards continue to struggle with maintaining a strategic focus. This session will explore how to go about elevating strategic planning and ongoing oversight and focus on the board agenda.

- The role of strategy in unifying the board and management
- Aligning board and management expectations regarding responsibility for strategy development and monitoring
- Establishing a well-designed strategic planning process
- Creating an active role for the board without usurping management's role

BOARD'S ROLE IN MANAGING ORGANIZATIONAL CHANGE NEEDED FOR STRATEGY IMPLEMENTATION

Often the strategic planning process will result in the need for significant organizational change in order to achieve strategic goals. This session looks at the board's role in managing organizational change needed for strategy implementation.

- Communicating goals and the need for change
- The role of leaders in driving change
- Managing resistance to change and building a sustained commitment to change
- Aligning the organization behind the strategic plan
